Precious Metal may be held in either a:

- Self Directed Custodial IRA
(There are many fine Depositories you may select to hold your IRA's precious metal. The IRA Club suggests Delaware Depository Services Company for safe keeping. Please use the Depository with which you are the most comfortable.)
- Self Directed IRA LLC
(We understand that some people want to have possession of the precious metal owned by their IRA however, taking physical position of your IRA's precious metal means that the precious metal could become easily comingled with your personal assets (this is a violation). Hence taking position of IRA precious metal is not recommended.

However, we recognize that some people are committed to taking position. If you are considering that action you may place your IRA in jeopardy of giving the appearance of co-mingling personal and IRA assets. At the very least you should consider placing the precious metal owned by your IRA in a safe deposit box separate from any other asset you may hold. (The above action is not a recommendation.) (If you are considering this action you may consider consulting with your tax professional.)
